Sex and Taxes—A Joint Venture

State Senator Bill Richardson (R-Arcadia), last week, produced this interesting comment on the forces that control your pocketbook — or why it costs you more to live. In the surprisingly few words following, Richardson brings the governmental eco-morality scene into focus.

"Now, from the people that brought you welfare, inflation and the national debt, comes the latest profilgate government spending . . . the property tax increase.

"In case you have just returned from a two-month vacation in the Himalayas and haven't heard the news yet, this year's property tax bills were received somewhat unenthusiastically by hapless homeowners, many of whom found that their tax bills had increased as much as 50 to 100 per cent in a single year.

"You might imagine that the spendthrift politicians responsible for this outrage had the good sense to quietly pack their carpetbags and leave town before the tax bills arrived. After all, in days gone by, any politician foolish enough to stick around and face the music would have probably spent his retirement years plucking feathers from the tar.

"But, all that is behind us now. We are living in the period of "post-Watergate morality", which means that you can get away with anything as long as you don't cover it up.

"Take, for example, the Washington sex scandals. One congressman admits having a mistress on the government payroll and he is promptly re-nominated by his constituents.

"Not to be outdone, another congressman boasts that not only does he have a mistress, but he bought her a house. Hardly a week goes by that the public is not treated to some new confession as one congressman after the other eagerly rushes forth to admit wrongdoing of one sort or another. There is apparently an unquenchable thirst for scandal.

"Is it any wonder, then, that the very same politicians responsible for your property tax increase are not leading the chorus demanding property tax reform? I guess it's a sign of the times. Local officials blame the county. The counties blame the state legislators. The state legislators blame the congress and the congressmen can't wait to confess.

"Meanwhile, property taxes continue to soar, with no genuine relief in sight."

"Of course, the Legislature is considering a number of proposed laws that would alter the property tax system, but none of these will actually cut taxes. The proponents of these phony tax relief schemes believe that the public will be satisfied with a merely cosmetic tax shift.

"For the uninitiated, a tax shift is where the government takes a little less out of your left pocket and makes up for the loss by taking a little more out of your right pocket. You pay the same amount, only you aren't supposed to realize it.

"Eventually, the public does begin to catch on so the government has to look for a new way to shake down the taxpayer. The most popular scheme in recent years has been the business tax.

"In this scam, the Legislature raises taxes for businesses instead of taxing the people directly. Of course, the consumer indirectly pays the tax through higher prices for goods and services, but it makes business, instead of government, look like the culprit.

"While consumers are angrily shaking their fists at business, government spending and taxes continue to rise.

"There is only one way to cut taxes — to cut government spending. Any legislative solution short of that only prolongs the inevitable which means more taxes for you — the consumer.

Tennis Pairings

Last week, the newly converted 42-year old transsexual tennis player, Dr. Renee Richards soundly defeated Cathy Beene in a singles match, 60, 62 in the $60,000 New Jersey tennis tournament.

Dr. Richards, nee Richard Raskind, a Newport Beach eye surgeon, had undergone a sex change operation last year to climax "a life's dream."

In tennis circles there is some question about Dr. Richards' right to play in women's tournaments.

The question among sports reporters concerns mixed doubles play: will Dr. Richards be required to face two opponents alone?

Neglect in Bonita Prompts Animal Regulation Shake-up

A shake up appears to be underway in the County Department of Animal Control following media exposure last week of a reported case of neglect at the South County Animal Shelter on Sweetwater rd. in Bonita.

The Shelter recently replaced one in Spring Valley on Jamacha rd.

Acting Director of County Animal Control James Gilshian has ordered the department to take quick action to prevent any future occurances of neglect such as the one reported in area newspapers and on television last week.

The local media publicized the case of a 2-year-old German shepherd, Holly, who was discovered at the Bonita shelter in an ill and emaciated state. Another dog in similar condition was mistakenly released to the owner.

In a separate issue, an Irish setter at the shelter was reportedly accidentally put to sleep a few days before Christmas even though a Bonita woman had made it known she wanted the dog for a Christmas gift for a child.

Dave Boyd, chief of Animal Regulation, said investigations into the ill treatment of the animal is being hindered by the absence of two officers at the Bonita shelter.

Both James Johnston, head of the South County Shelter, and Leo Smith, kennelman, went on vacation shortly before the stories broke.

The two will return Monday, Boyd said. When they return, an inter-departmental study and a report to the District Attorney being prepared by the Humane Society will be completed.

County Supervisors, upon a suggestion made by Supervisor Jack Walsh, were expected to order a full review of the Department of Animal Control this week.

Tire Slasher Busy

A small knife was used to slash two tires on an auto belong to Mary I. Misenhimer of 1635 Dupon dr., Lemon Grove.

The incident was reported to the sheriff's office about 6:30 a.m. on August 13.

The victim said it would cost about $73 to replace the ruined tires.

Two File for School Board Seat in L.G.

Two candidates have filed for the vacancy on the Lemon Grove School District governing board and another three have taken out application forms for the seat which goes to the highest vote-getter in the November 2 election.

Craig Lake, co-owner of Dell Enterprises in Lemon Grove and resident of Skyline dr., and Carol Chubb, who has been active in local PTA's and other community groups, filed for candidacy, the County Registrar of Voters announced.

A spokesman for the registrar reported that three others—Charles P. Pennell, Gordon R. Boyes and Bernard H. Brandt — took out application papers, but at press time neither had filed. The registrar will accept applications for the seat until 5 p.m., September 3.

Lake has been active in the Lemon Grove Kiwanis Club and the Key Club chapter at Mt. Miguel for eight years. He was Key Club advisor for four years and was Youth Advisor to all the Kiwanis Southern area for one year.

He is currently on the Board of Directors of the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Lemon Grove Incorporation Committee.

Lake grew up and attended school in the neighborhood he now calls home. His 5-year-old daughter, Paige, will start kindergarten this fall at the same school he attended, Monterey Heights.

Mrs. Chubb served as PTA president at San Altos Elementary and at Palm Jr. High. She served two years as secretary of the Valley Grove Council. She is a former member of the Lemon Grove Jr. Women's Club and is now a member of the Las Donas Past Presidents' Club and the Catholic Daughters of America.

Carol and husband Wayne, employed at Miller Dairy, have lived at 1909 Lacorta st. for 19 years. They have three children, two grown, and a son who graduated from San Altos Elementary and will enter Palm Jr. High in September.

The elected board member will fill out the remainder of former trustee John Linn's term. The term expires in March 1977 at which time an at-large election will be held for the vacated seat and those now held by Leonard Klee and senior member H. Warren Buckner.

Interest High for LM-SV School Seat

By Tuesday afternoon, eleven people had expressed interest in a school board vacancy in the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District, a secretary to the school superintendent said.

Of the eleven forms handed out, three had been returned.

The district's governing board will appoint one of the applicants in September.

Applications will be accepted until September 10 and forms are available at the Office of the Superintendent at 4750 Date ave., La Mesa.

Jr. High Bus Riders Have S.D. Transit Alternative

Junior high students affected by the Lemon Grove School District's recent decision to discontinue bus service have an alternative from the San Diego Transit Co., Superintendent Robert Sutton announced this week.

The scheduler at the transit company agreed to hold the southbound morning Rt. 36 bus four minutes to pick up passengers at Broadway and Massachusetts. Rt. 36 goes east on Broadway and south on Skyline with stops near Lemon Grove Jr. High and at Palm and Skyline, about 8 residental blocks from Palm Jr. High.

The four-minute hold is to await transfers from the northbound Rt. 16 which cuts through Lemon Grove from Southeast San Diego by way of Klauber, 69th, Madera and Massachusetts.

Similar transfer convenience was not possible for after school routes, Sutton was told. Jr. High students reliant upon that transfer might face up to a 20 minute wait, he said. Better arrangements may be possible after the first of the year.

The school board voted to cut bus service to junior high students recently.

Developer Stymied at Possible Park Site

SV Park District Proposal Gets 7¢ Rate

CONTROVERSY AT BANCROFT RANCH—Ronald Swaim (left) listens as Brian Mooney, County environmental management specialist, discusses with other County officials archeological significance of a plot of land adjacent to the Bancroft Ranch House. Swaim, an El Cajon developer, bought a nearby piece of land and has the digging site in escrow, counter to the wishes of the Spring Valley Historical Society which would prefer to preserve much of the land in that vicinity as a historic park. The County may purchase the properties.

Voters will decide on whether to establish a local park maintenance district in the Spring Valley area in the fall election, the County Board of Supervisors decided last week.

Supervisors agreed to place on the ballot an item which would establish County Service Area No. 85 and set an initial tax rate of 7-cents per $100 assessed valuation for first year operations. CSA No. 85 would include Mt. Helix, Casa de Oro, Rancho San Diego and the portion of Spring Valley not included in the Spring Valley Park and Recreation District.

Second District Supervisor Dick Brown sponsored the local park service areas proposal which also included elections in Fallbrook, Lakeside, Santee and San Dieguito.

Brown supports a philosophy of local funding for local park projects. The general impetus of recent county park planning has been in the direction of regional park plans.

The County has budgeted park land dedication money for Spring Valley — about $400,000 according to County park planner Nick Kavakich—but will not proceed with land acquisition unless C.S.A. 85 is established.

About 20 sites are listed as potential parks in the service district, according to John Steiger, second vice president of the Valle de Oro Planning Assn. and member of the VdO Citizens Executive Committee.

Bancroft Controversy

The most controversial among those is the historic Bancroft Ranch House and adjacent lots. Developer Ronald Swaim purchased a lot near the house on the Goodbody Estate property off Orange pl. and has another piece of land, directly behind the ranch house in escrow.

Swaim intended to build a 14-unit apartment complex on the Orange pl. lot but was issued a stop-work order by the County a few days after he began excavating the ½-acre lot.

Karna Webster, acting on behalf of the Spring Valley Historical Society, complained to county officials that Swaim's earthmoving equipment was disrupting a potentially valuable archeological site.

Indian artifacts and evidence of ancient Indian and Spanish civilizations have been uncovered by local college excavation teams on the property Swaim has in escrow.

The County ordered work to stop when it was discovered that Swaim may have removed more than the legal cubic yardage of dirt from the property without a grading permit.

Law permits the builder to remove up to 200 cu. yds. without a permit. The County says Swaim moved nearly 400 cu. yds. before the halt was ordered.

Swaim denies that he romoved more than 200 cu. yd., insisting that grading had taken place before he purchased the property and that land clearing was erroneously attributed to his workmen.

The Board of Supervisors heard the problem last week in public session and decided to direct staff to prepare a study on the feasibility of purchasing the controversial properties.

Other Sites

Other high priority park sites, according to Steiger, include plots near Estrella st., near Spring Valley Elementary School, and near Kenwood dr., the latter being a Grossmont Union High School District property and a potential site for its 10th high school. The school district, Steiger said, might be willing to convert that land into a community park.

Also given high priority are three site in Rancho San Diego one near Avocado School, another on San Carlos dr. and a third on Austin dr. near Jamacha rd.

September 15 Last Day to Challenge County Assessor

Homeowners who wish to contest the assessed valuation of their homes have until September 15 to file an appeal form with the County.

A property owner can contest the assessor's full value estimate if he believes it is excessive. Except for land in the "open space" program, "full value" is defined as the price a willing and knowledgeable seller could obtain for the property from a willing and knowledgeable buyer.

To contest the assessor's full value, State Board of Equalization director Iris Sankey recommends property owners learn the market values of comparable properties in their neighborhood.

Owners cannot expect relief merely because taxes are generally high or because the current assessed value is considerably higher than last year's.

The current assessed value must be excessive relative to what the property was worth on the statutory lien date of March 1, 1976.

Appeal forms may be obtained from the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.

Sankey said that if a property owner has not yet received notice of the assessed value of his property, he may obtain the information from the office of the County Assessor. Usually that information can be given by phone or mail if the owner can identify his property accurately, preferably by parcel number, Sankey said.

Knife is Weapon

A black male, about 15, has been charged with armed robbery after he is said to have stolen a $4 bottle of perfume from the Sav-on Drug store at 661 Sweetwater rd., Spring Valley, about noon on August 14.

The store's security guard, Norma Josephine Galleano, followed the suspect to the 800 block on Safford st., Spring Valley, where she apprehended the suspect who was sent to juvenile hall.

A 10" curved blade butcher knife was used during the escape when he was stopped as he left the store. A witness said that the suspect slashed at the security guard saying, "Back off or I'll kill you."

Burglary Nets Jewelry

The bedroom window of Karen Kough Smith's residence was forced by a burglar on August 5 to steal items of jewelry she valued at $240.

The residence, at 9155 Rosedale st., Spring Valley, was burglarized while she was at work and the loss included a man's gold watch, a gold wedding band, an antique gold chain and two turquoise rings.

CB Radio, Tools Taken

At 8 a.m. on August 10, Michael J. Cloen, of 8056 Canton dr., reported to sheriff's deputies that his Chevrolet New York had been entered by way of its windwing and his CB radio worth $160 and tools valued at $100 were missing.

Cloen was in his residence sleeping when the thief broke in his car by using a screwdriver.

'Do Me a Favor'

A white male, about 20, entered the House of Subs at 7123 Broadway in Lemon Grove about 9 p.m. August 13 and said to the clerk, Louette Margarite Sedlock, "Do me a favor. Put the money in the bag."

She did him a favor. She put $210 in a brown paper bag and the thief, who used a simulated weapon, ripped the telephone off and left.

Porsche Top Stolen

A thief climbed the high wire fence at the County Auto Pool at 9122 Olive dr., Spring Valley after 7 p.m. on August 14, and took with him a 1968 Porsche Targa Top worth $1,100.

The premises were closed for the night when the theft occurred.

Peacocks Disappear From Grove

Two elusive peacocks, flying and foraging at large in the heart of Lemon Grove during recent weeks, have apparently flown out of the limelight.

According to County Animal Regulation chief Dave Boyd, no new sightings of the fugitive fowl have been reported for more than a week.

County Animal Regulation officials and personnel from the San Diego Zoo have tried on different occasions to capture the two birds which had sought sanctuary among the central Lemon Grove residential area, near Lincoln and Central ave. The duo thrived on berries, fruit and anything edible.

Boyd said the birds might have belonged to a local resident who may not have cared to have them back. There are no local laws forbidding the private ownership of peacocks.

No Local Impact Expected After Water Rate Drop

The Metropolitan Water District board of directors set its 1976-77 tax rate at 12 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation. The rate is one cent lower than last year.

It is based on a budget of $193,229,000 and a total assessed valuation for the district's six-county area of about $45.7 billion, an increase of 15.4 per cent over last year.

Construction expenditures show a $10 million decline while operation and maintenance costs were expected to increase $5.6 million.

A spokesman for Helix Water District, serving most of the Lemon Grove-Spring Valley area, said the drop in MWD's tax rates was not expected to change local water rates.

MWD provides supplemental water in San Diego, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Vetnura counties, a total of area of nearly 11 million people.

Missionaries to Be Honored at Inspiration Day

Missionaries representing a variety of denominations will be honored Friday, September 3 when they are presented at Mission Inspiration Day, a yearly, public celebration sponsored by Church Women United.

Christ United Methodist Church, 3295 Meade ave. San Diego, is the meeting place. Registration is scheduled for 9:15 a.m. and the program for 10.

All church groups, whether or not affiliated with Church Women United, may participate, according to President Mrs. Virginia Stillman of Spring Valley.

Also on the program, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Carl Segerhammar of Los Angeles will present film coverage of a tour of churches and missions and report on the conference of the World Council of Churches held in Nairobi, Africa last spring.

Dr. Segerhammar is immediate past president of the Pacific Southwest Synod of the Lutheran Church in America. His wife is immediate past president of Church Women United in Southern California and Nevada and is currently a ntional vice president of the organization.

A "Least Coin" ritual will be observed at the worship service and representatives from the San Diego Folk Faire will model ethnic costumes during the noon luncheon.

Minister Brings Dream of Filled Pews

By John Kowalczyk

Dudley Johnson is a newcomer in Lemon Grove who would like to see his newly acquired parish boost its membership back up to where it was more than a decade ago, before the troubling sixties.

Dr. Johnson is the new pastor at Lemon Grove United Methodist Church on Washington and Golden ave., which — like most protestant churches across the country — has suffered the loss of hundreds of members since 1964.

The hilltop house of worship itself dropped about 800 members from 1964 to 1970, Johnson said. Today, out of a congregation of 400, little more than 100 attend regularly.

"The United Methodist faith alone has lost more than a million members during those years," he said. Today, the church is "trying to relate to change as well as affect change."

In that spirit, Dr. Johnson plans to visit every family in his church as a "get acquainted" gesture. There won't be any fire and brimstone speechery to manipulate people back into the pews, he said. His more soft-sell approach is aimed, as he says, at "building a sense of trust" in the church.

Johnson and family gave up a beachside home (300 ft. from the shore line) and a church in Morro Bay, California to take up pulpit duties in Lemon Grove.

Also new in town are wife Elizabeth and three children: Brent, 11, Sandy, 5, and Rendell, 1.

The minister, who replaced Rev. Thomas Rothhaar on July 1, is encouraged by a younger congregation and a larger geographic area than the one he left up north.

More than 90 per cent of the church-goers were over 65 in the retirement community of Morro Bay.

'Californian'

Johnson hails from San Antonio, Texas and came to California in 1961 from Benton, Arkansas. As he has lived in the state 15 years, he likes to call himself a Californian.

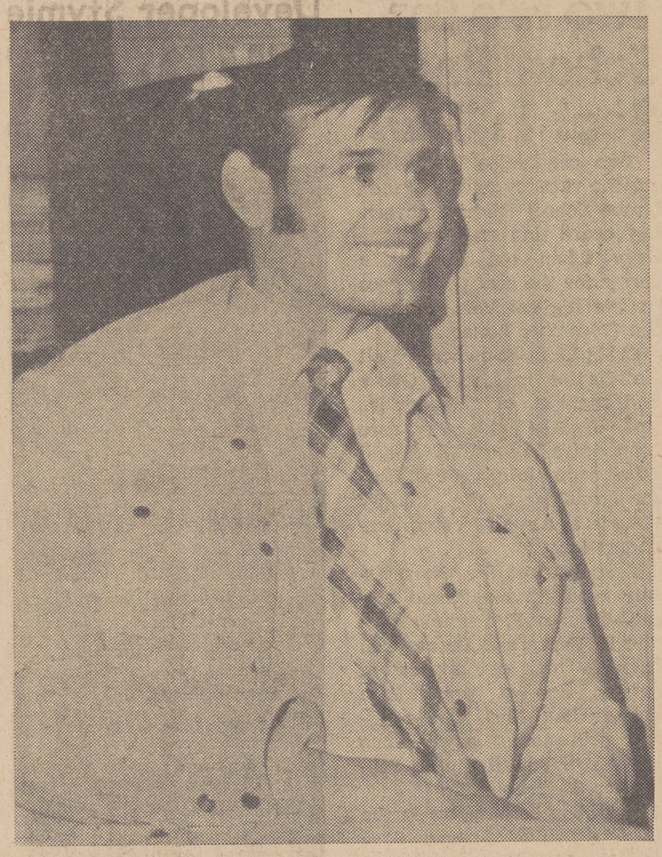
He graduated from California State, Long Beach in 1967 with a B.A. in sociology and emerged with a Doctor's degree in ethnics and communication at Southern California School of Theology in Claremont in 1971.

His Californian roots were pulled in 1971 when he took a call to serve two small churches in a parish in East Oregon. Three preachers served five churches in the Union County Larger Parish and Johnson — aside from traveling 60 miles every Sunday to preach at his two churches — was responsible for the parish's youth program.

In 1972, he took the call at Morro Bay's Estero Bay United Methodist Church and spend three of four years there under contract with the U. S. Air Force as a civil service chaplain for the 775th Radar Squadron.

Now he becomes part of Lemon Grove, a "fantastic town" in his words. Morro Bay didn't offer the restaurants and shopping that are available in this suburban haven.

"I'm overwhelmed by the largeness," Johnson said.



NEW PREACHER — Dr. Dudley Johnson, new minister at United Methodist Church of Lemon Grove, wants to see a church membership revival here and sees times changing in favor of that wish.

Descanso Church Sets Pit BarBQ

Our Lady of the Light Church, Descanso, plans a pre-Labor Day public barbecue 12-6 p.m. Sunday, September 5.

The menu is barbecued beef, baked beans, cole slaw, rolls, homemade apple pie and coffee. The tab is $3 for adults; $2 for children under 13 and $10 for a family of 2 adults and 2 children.

Various booths will offer cotton candy, sno-cones, popcorn and beer.

Door prizes include a trip to Acapulco; a weekend at Tahoe; a case of liquor, and a bundle of barbecued beef.

Proceeds from the event will go to the church building fund and the new rectory, said Father William Brown, the church's minister.

He said the barbecued beef would be cooked in a 8'35' pit for 12 hours by men of the parish. The pit will be opened at noon, the day of the event.

Cash Bonus Eyed as Increase For Aged, Disabled in State

California recently took steps to insure that its payment levels for aged, blind and disabled public assistance recipients remain among the highest in the nation, the state Department of Benefit payments director has announced.

"Our State Legislature authorized a sizeable benefit increase this year," said Benefit Payments Director Marion Woods, "and that was just the first step in a long-range plan to improve benefits for our aged, blind and disabled.

"California requested federal legislation . . . that will enable us to provide an even greater payment increase for these recipients next year."

The federal legislation authorizes California to continue a policy of providing a cash bonus in the monthly payment of its aged, blind and disabled instead of food stamps.

An end to the cash bonus policy would have cost the state $65 million this year to provide $24 million in food stamp benefits to one-third of the state's aged, blind and disabled public assistance recipients who were expected to participate in the food stamp program.

The legislature reasoned that if the cash out policy was continued, the $65 million could be redirected to put more money in the hands of all of California's aged, blind and disabled welfare recipients next year.

Aged, blind and disabled public assistance recipients receive benefits through the federal Supplemental Security Income program and the State Supplementary Program (SSI/SSP). Although both levels of government finance the benefits, payments to recipients are made in a single gold check from the Social Security Administration.

Previously, the state authorized annual cost of living increases in the State Supplementary Program portion of the payments, but due to a complex sharing ratio, annual federal increases in the Supplemental Security Income program have not been passed on to recipients.

Next year, the full amount of the federal increase will be passed on and recipients will also receive the standard state cost of living increase, according to the Department.

This year's increase, which became effective July 1 and included a $3 "pass on," is $17 a month for the aged and disabled and $21 a month for the blind. Recipients will receive the higher payments in their regular check beginning in September, the Department promises. The increase for July and August will be paid in a separate check.

Two TV Studies Worth College Credit at UCSD

Two home study courses based on television programs are on the fall curriculum at UC San Diego Extension. The shows, "The Adams Chronicles: 1750-1900" and "Anyone for Tennyson? An Introduction to Poetry in the English and American Tradition", will begin the week of September 20.

Students enroll as for any other course, watch the programs at home, do the assigned reading and other work and attend "contact sessions" on the UCSD campus.

"Adams Chronicles" follows the Adams family through the years the family gave the U.S. its second and sixth presidents, a vice-president, a delegate to the two Continental Congresses, a secretary of state, several ambassadors and a host of other important figures.

"Tennyson" is public television's first national series devoted to poetry. The series features a group of young performers known as the First Poetry Quartet.

They are joined by guest artists such as Henry Fonda, Claire Bloom, and Will Geer.

Registration material may be obtained by calling the Extension office at 452-3400.

Fabric Care Tips

Ballpoint Can Spell Doom for Good Clothing

The busy businessman, time-pressed student and harried housewife are sometimes real terrors with a ball point pen. One quick swipe with instrument in hand can put a nice mark on a fine piece of clothing.

A first impulse, according to Tom Stein of Dutch Cleaners, is to soak the impromtu autograph in a water solution.

Not very smart, say he. Putting water on that ink spot will probably make it permanent.

Unlike many common stains, ballpoint ink is set by water. This makes it particularly hazardous to clothing.

Some stains, like grease, aren't removed by rinsing, but at least they aren't set. With ballpoint ink, if you follow your first instinct and try to rinse it out, you'll end up with a permanent mark.

To protect your investment in clothing, those ink-stained clothes should be drycleaned.

A. Newman to Perform On P.B.'s 'Mighty Mo'

The La Jolla Chamber Music Society has announced a special dinner-concert fund-raising event scheduled for Monday, September 13 at Organ Power Pizza in Pacific Beach, featuring Anthony Newman at the "Mighty" Moller Organ.

Newman plans a unique program using what he calls "the challenging intricacies and intriguing possibilities of the 1938 Reginald Foort Moller Organ, known as "Mighty Mo" at the Pacific Beach restaurant.

The largest organ of its kind, it has five keyboards, hundreds of controls, thousands of pipes, a theatrical lighting panel and a variety of other interesting components.

His concert at 8 p.m. is preceded by a pizza dinner from 6 to 7:45 including an open salad bar, wine, beer or soft drinks, dessert and coffee.

The gala musical frolic, at $15 a person, will benefit the educational programs of the La Jolla Chamber Music Society.

Porno, Not Family Films, Draws Crowds on Campo Rd.

By John Kowalczyk

A noble experiment in family entertainment became one of this area's royal flops recently.

The enterprising Jerry Rucker, sixth owner of what started out to be a Jerry Lewis family theater, became the fourth proprietor to fail at that location as a family movie house operator.

But Rucker did more than show G, PG, or R films nightly at his Showcase Cinema. When he closed his Campo rd. operation to X-rated flicks on June 20 and reopened June 26 as a family theater, he embarked upon a six-week promotional extravaganza to get the new format off the ground.

It never did.

"You can't say I didn't try," Rucker says today, without a trace of bitterness.

One might think he had every right to be somewhat upset. His six-week attempt at family viewing cost him close to $15,000.

No tears from Mr. Rucker, though. On August 4, he said goodbye to the family format and switched back to porno, and today he is on the road to profit once again.

"I expect to be in the black by late October at the latest," he said.

"It's an excellent afternoon and a great evening business, now," he said. As a family theater, Showcase took in $35 on an average day. With the X-rated trade, $300 is a typical daily draw.

Showcase runs on a daily schedule from noon to midnight. Single admission is raised from $2.50 to $3.50, but couples can get in for $5.

Couples

"We do a good business with couples," Rucker said, adding that 80 per cent of his evening crowd fits that category.

"Afternoons see mostly males (salesmen, construction workers, utility workers) taking an hour or two off. But the evenings are predominantly couples."

Not a closet businessman, Rucker is often in the theater and talks frequently with his patrons. Many, he says, compliment him on the cleanliness of the theater, lobby and restrooms, in contrast to the stereotyped impression of the inside of a porno palace.

He also gets a grasp in conversation of which parts of town his patrons hail from. Few, he says, are local. But they come from as far away as Escondido and Tijuana. Local people looking for X-rated entertainment usually go someplace away from where they live so as not to be seen, he said.

The theater's family audience never got nearly the response that one of Rucker's porno bookings have.

Opening night for family was a gala affair with a multi-piece jazz band accompanying the film "Food of the Gods," a PG-rated picture. Rucker hoped to cause "the biggest traffic jam in the history of Casa de Oro" that night.

But there were no traffic jams.

In fact, the second show did so poorly that there were more people on stage than in the audience.

Failure Documented

Other evidence of the dismal failure is documented:

- Rucker printed 6,000 coupon booklets with a total of $5,000 worth of discounts from a wide assortment of businesses. The intent was to pass out a booklet to each patron every Wednesday. When few people showed, the theater started passing the booklets out to everyone, every day.

The owner eventually unloaded most of them on the merchants in the community and says he still has about 300 or 400 left.

- In the middle of July, a rock group staged a Saturday, midnight live concert to kick off a weekly series. With admission set at $2, it drew 75 people and was not repeated.
- The theater booked special kiddies matinees when the regular run was not suitable for children. Response was so poor that one day not a child showed up and the theater closed.
- Attendance at the regular evening shows was a theater owner's nightmare, too. Three times a week, on the average, the theater would close without a second showing because no one came.
- Stiff competition among the established theaters posed problems for Rucker who was trying to book the top-running films. He couldn't afford the high price of first-run films (which usually demand exorbitant percentages of the box office receipts), and those he could book were contested by other theater owners.

Two blockbusters he almost landed were "All the President's Men" and "Bad News Bears'". Rucker said both films were booked but were taken back when other more established theaters with the same billing complained that Showcase was cutting into their business.

Not a Loser

Though the loss incurred through the venture into family viewing was substantial, the owner doesn't bear a loser's profile. And switching back to porno doesn't trouble Rucker's conscience.

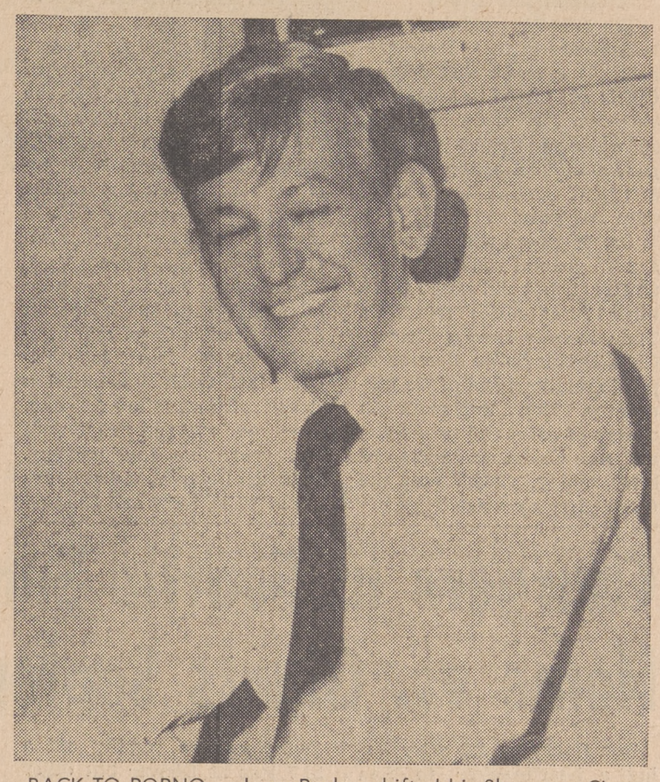
A family man living in the area, he said, "I believe people should be able to watch what they want to watch." He had hoped enough people living in the area would have wanted to see what he was showing during his family days but concedes he probably made a mistake.

"I didn't care about the profit. If the family format could have just sustained itself and paid expenses, I would have been satisfied," he said.

He saw much potential for the family format because of the expected 20,000-person population boom expected during the next decade in Rancho San Diego and vicinity.

In fact, he still thinks there is a chance for family movies in Casa de Oro, probably after the Rancho San Diego property is developed.

But for right now, porno seems to be the only movie entertainment that sells on Casa de Oro's Campo rd. business strip.



BACK TO PORNO — Jerry Rucker shifted his Showcase Cinema movie format back to X-rate pictures after becoming the fourth owner to fail at family entertainment. The owner tried unsuccessfully for six weeks to establish the format before he returned to porno August 4.

HOME-COOKED

This Week's RECIPE

Strawberry Shortcake: Colonial Classic

Strawberry shortcake even beats out apple pie as an All-American dish. The fruit was discovered here by early colonists who came up with the shortcake to celebrate their good fortune.

What better way to salute the summer days than with an updated version of the great dessert?

SHORTCAKE BISCUITS

2 cups flour
1 tbsp. baking powder
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1/3 cup shortening
2/3 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Cut shortening into the dry ingredients until mixture looks like meal. Add milk to make soft, puffy dough. Knead on lightly floured board. Roll to ½-inch thickness, shape to fit a 9-inch pie tin. Place in ungreased tin and bake in preheated 450° oven for about 12 minutes. Test for doneness with toothpick.

STRAWBERY GLAZE AND TOPPING

1 cup water
¼ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
1 tbsp. orange peel.
2/3 cup strawberry jam or preserves
2 tbsp. sugar
1 quart fresh or frozen strawberries
1 cup heavy cream
½ tsp. orange flavoring
1/3 cup confectioner's sugar

In a saucepan, blend water, 1/4 cup sugar, orange juice and peel, stirring over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Remove from stove and set aside. Force the strawberry jam or preserves through a sieve into a second saucepan.

Add 2 tablespoons sugar and stir over high heat until boiling. Continue to heat for several minutes, stirring constantly. Cover to keep warm and set aside.

Clean fresh berries or defrost frozen ones.

In a mixing bowl, beat heavy cream, orange flavoring and confectioner's sugar until stiff. Place in refrigerator until ready to use.

Meanwhile, remove shortcake biscuit from pie tin to serving dish and slice in half. Pour successive spoonfuls of the tepid orange juice syrup gradually over the bottom half, letting it absorb as much liquid as it will.

Fold the fresh or frozen strawberries into the whipped cream and turn into the bottom of the biscuit. Add biscuit top and spread with strawberry jam glaze. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar if desired. Serves 6 to 8.

CYO Auditions Open

An audition for all young musicians from all over San Diego Country has been scheduled for September 2 and 4th at Mesa College by the two S.D. Civic Youth Orchestras.

Those interested in seeking a place should contact CYO manager Pat Guest at 454-8674, according to Thomas Nee, music director and conductor of CYO I. The 75 youths selected for CYO I and the 70 students with less experience chosen for CYO II will play symphonic music suited to their abilities. Both orchestras will rehearse Saturdays, during the school year, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Mesa College.

Two Shows Help American Indian In September

A San Diego show and an El Cajon benefit are two coming attractions which will promote and aid the American Indian in San Diego next month.

The "Great American Indian Show" is set for the Scottish Rite Center in Mission Valley, September 3-5. More than $1 million in native American arts and crafts will be on sale to the public.

Billed as the "oldest show of its kind," daily attractions will feature authentic tribal rituals, rug weaving, beading, sign language, silver work and leather craft.

Iron Eyes Cody, as the show's emcee, promises to be another popular draw. Cody is the Cherokee Indian actor best known as the tear-eyed Indian in a nationally distributed public service TV message about pollution.

Admission is $1.50, $1 for students, $.50 for juniors and free to children under 12.

On September 4, the Big Oak Ranch, Frontier Town, in El Cajon will host a one-day benefit honoring the native American Indian.

Indian food, dance, crafts and jewelry will be among the attractions which also include two local bands playing bluegrass and country rock music.

The 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. program's profits will benefit American Indians through the Indian Center, 5th and Cedar, San Diego.

French Native to Show Oil Paint Skill

Foothills Art Association sponsors a free oil painting demonstration in September. Teacher and artist Pieire Gauraud will exhibit his skill Thursday, September 2, 7 p.m. at the Ben Polak Fine Arts Center, 8053 University ave., La Mesa.

Gauraud, a French native, studied in France, Italy, and Brazil. He teaches in the adult education system in San Diego and is noted for his seascapes and landscapes, particularly desert scenes.

Youth Philharmonia Rehearsals Scheduled

Serious, young musicians of late, high school or college age are invited to audition for the Heartland Youth Philharmonia, an orchestra which will perform in the East County Center for the Performing Arts.

The Center is in El Cajon's new super block now being completed.

Rehearsals will be in room 221 at Grossmont College—the first will be September 4, 9-12 noon.

Associate conductors are Charles McLeod, La Mesa and Anthony Porto, San Diego. Both are music instructors at Grossmont. Porto will concentrate on stringed instruments; McLeod will coach winds and brasses. They will alternate as conductors.

Telephone contact with Philharmonia is 466-0112.

Sinor's New Book's Locale Is S.D. Wild Animal Park

John Sinor, the family humorist-columnist of the San Diego Evening Tribune, has done it again — but with an about face.

This time he has written a book strictly for the kiddies rather than about them.

Sinor wrote, and Joyce Press published Sinor's successful "Eleven Albatrosses in My Bluebird Tree."

Using the same publishing house, Sinor has fathered "Finsterhall of San Pasqual" a story of a young rabbit, the rabbit's friends and their reaction to finding their home turned into a wild animal park, complete with elephants, rhinos, lions and other exotic creatures.

The soundness of the Sinor manuscript, based on real inhabitants of the S.D. Wild Animal Park, was proved when Disney Studios filmed it for later release.

"Finsterhall", the publisher says, bids fair to become another children's classic in the tradition of "Bambi."

"'Finsterhall's' appeal is not limited to just children, however. Sinor has written it with the same sensitive and poignant style that has won him such a devoted following as a columnist for the Evening Tribune."

Sinor's columns are syndicated through the Copley News Service, which distributes them to more than 600 newspapers throughout the United States and other nations.

His newest book is illustrated by Alaskan artist Bud Root. The 80-page book will be off the presses by September 10 and will retail for $5.95 in hardback form.

WHA Hockey Returns to S.D. Arena October 9; Oakes Back as 'Voice'

Three signings with more expected this week highlight a flurry of activity for the World Hockey Association San Diego Mariners as the 1976-77 season approaches with a rush.

In addition to the signings, the Mariners have released their 80-game schedule, announced some front office personnel and fixed a starting time for training camp workouts.

Coach and player personnel director Ron Ingram has purchased veteran winger Gary Veneruzzo and come to terms with amateur Tim O'Connell and center-winger Bob Dobek.

Veneruzzo was obtained from WHA member Phoenix. The 33-year-old left winger has averaged just under 35 goals in four WHA seasons. O'Connell is here from University of Vermont where he was Eastern Collegiate Rookie of the Year in 1972-73 and topped his team in scoring twice.

Dobek played in 14 regular seasons and 11 playoff games for San Diego last year after leading the United States Olympic team in scoring as well as his Bowling Green team in both his junior and senior terms.

Schedules Ready

The 1976-77 schedule has 40 home dates in the Sports Arena and begins October 9 when Cincinnati comes to town. The home slate gives the Mariners 20 weekend and 20 weekday games with all action starting at 7 p.m., one-half hour earlier than last year.

The Mariners will introduce a new general manager, September 1, but did name three other front office members. They include Lemon Grove's Gabe DeNunzio as director of public relations and office procedures, Don Buchanan in charge of sales and promotion and Ron Oakes as director of broadcasting. Oakes was the Gulls' first air voice.

In the Gulls initial season in 1966, the team was forced to play its first 13 games on the road while construction on a new arena was being completed. Oakes' ability to introduce the sport to San Diego fans during this period was given as one of the main reasons the Gulls first home appearance resulted in a sellout crowd.

After his work with the Gulls, Oakes broadcast with the former WHA Vancouver Blazers for two seasons and did closed-circuit telecasts for the National League Los Angeles Kings in 1975-76.

Born in Winnipeg, Oakes is married and the father of five daughters.

San Diego's training camp, to be held at the local Mira Mesa House of Ice for the third straight year, opens September 18 with approximately 40 players to be greeted by Ingram. WHA rules this season will allow each club to maintain a roster of 16 skaters and two goaltenders.

New owner Ray Kroc, whose other interests are chairman of McDonald's Corp. and ownership of the San Diego Padres, last week announced a ticket price structure 32 cents lower per average ticket than last year plus free parking. Individual game tickets are set at $7.50, $5.50 and $3.

Women's Amateur Links Tournament Set for Pomona

The seventh annual Women's S. Cal. Amateur Golf Championship — open to both public links and private course players — will be played September 29-30-Oct. 1 at Pomona National Golf Club, announced tournament chairman Jeannie Colbert.

The 54-hole stroke play tournament will have a championship division and two handicap flights.

Entry fee is $30, which includes greens fees, three continental breakfasts and lunch at the awards presentation ceremony.

The maximum handicap is 30 and only the first 100 entries will be accepted. Entries close September 20.

Defending champion is Tamara (Tammy) Snooks, 17, who plays on the San Clemente High boys golf team. Irene Zuniga of Riverview CC in Santa Ana was runner-up.

Miller is Chairman

Golfing's great Johnny Miller has been named honorary chairman of National Hunting and Fishing Day, September 25.

Miller, 29, is an avid hunter and fisherman.

Sportsmen are encouraged to participate in the day's promotion. NH&FD headquarters is 1075 Post rd., Riverside, Conn., 06878.

S.D. to Hail 11 Olympians

Eleven 1976 Olympic participants who live in San Diego, will be honored Sunday, September 12 in an admission free "Salute to San Diego's Finest".

The ceremony will be in Recital Hall, Balboa Park, 5-7 p.m.

To be honored are Arnie Robinson, long jump gold medalist; Greg Louganis, diving, silver medalist; Dennis Conner, yachting, bronze medalist; Lynn Silliman, yachting, bronze medalist; Robbie Haines, yachting, alternate; Marty Lockwood, wrestling; Bill McMillan, pistol shooting; Ed Mendoza, 10,000 meter run; Mount, wrestling; Pete Schmock, shot put, and Quentin Wheeler, hurdles.

Mickie Tyler, herself a former Olympian, track, is chairman of the event. Dr. George Rhoden, former track Olympian will be speaker. The Rev. George Walker Smith and San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson are also programmed. Hal Clement is M.C.

Friday's Scrimmage May Fill Aztecs' Gridiron Positions

Another full scale scrimmage will highlight the second week of fall football practice for S.D. State U.

Head Coach Claude Gilbert will scrimmage his squad Friday at 7 p.m. in Aztec Bowl on the Aztec campus and the workout is open to the public as was Wednesday's.

Several positions are still up for grabs and the Aztec coaching staff hopes the scrimmages will settle those issues. The most notable position fight is at quarterback where veteran Pete Tereschuk and Tom Craft are battling junior college transfer Joe Davis.

On offense, Dave Johnston has the center job and Mark Johnson the left guard spot, but the other jobs are still open.

Bill Helms has the tight end spot nailed down with Vollon Dixon at one wide receiver slot. Ralph Reagan, Ron Smith, Kelvin O'Brien and Terry White are all fighting for the other wide spot.

The running back spots belong to David Turner and either Binky Benton or Ollie Brown, depending if the Aztecs run from I backs or split backs.

On defense, Ed Ima appears to be the No. 1 nose tackle, but Donny Holmes is being challenged by Gilbert Trevis at left end and Ricky Richardson must hold off Bob Francis at right end.

Trevis Hitt and Whip Walton are the two inside linebackers with Paul Brandow and Mike Douglass at the outside spots. Hitt and Walton's jobs are secure, but Bo Larson and Bennie Rayford are challenging at outside.

State opens the season in S.D. Stadium on September 12 at 6 p.m. against Arkansas State U.

S&L Executive Heads UW/CHAD Drive in L.G.

Charles T. Ashby, a Lemon Grove savings and loan executive has been named Lemon Grove Community chairman of the forthcoming United Way CHAD 1976 Combined Campaign.

Ashby, of 3951 Paula st., La Mesa, is assistant vice president of Imperial Savings and Loan Assn. in Lemon Grove. He will head a team of volunteer campaigners seeking to exceed the $8,796 raised in last year's Lemon Grove campaign.

The East County campaign begins with a 6 p.m. dinner September 14 at Carlton Oaks Country Club in Santee.

The county-wide United Way/CHAD campaign has set a goal of $8,150,000 to provide operating funds for a hundred health and social service agencies. The services of United Way and CHAD agencies reach one out of every three residents of San Diego County.

Ashby, who also served as Lemon Grove business division chairman in the 1975 campaign, is a graduate of S.D. State U. where he earned a B.S. degree in business management.

Bills Would End Computer Snoops

Two bills are moving through the State Legislature to protect the confidentiality of computer information on individuals, Senate President Pro Tem James Mills reported.

A Senate bill, S.B. 1586, forbids any state agency from divulging personal data to outsiders.

The Brown administration supports a similar measure, Assembly Bill 4014. It would increase the enforcement power of the Secretary of State against misuse of personal information maintained by state agencies.

Both bills have passed in their respective houses and are now awaiting hearings before the Judiciary Committees.

Mills said both bills allow citizens to correct any errors in their computer files.

IPO Plots Change In General Plan

The Environmental Review board said today that changes requested by the County Integrated Planning Office (IPO) would not create adverse environmental problems.

IPO proposed these changes in County General Plan categories: To be added are PMD, planned mobile home development; T-40 temporary zone of one residential home per 40-acre parcel; and FC, flood channel zone.

To be deleted are: zones A-3-1 and A-4-1 which allow specific heavy agricultural use of a one-acre parcel, and zones LC and LCA, which allow various types of construction with a special use permit.

IPO intends to add 7 land-use categories: military, university, other institutions, cemeteries, water bodies, regional parks and flood plains.

Car Burglary Reported

A thief used a screwdriver to enter the auto belonging to Carlos E. Long, of 1507 Walbollen, Spring Valley, while he was sleeping in his residence.

He told sheriff's deputies August 15 that a 3-channel CB radio worth $30 and his wallet with $286 in cash, plus some credit cards — all left in his car — were taken. His total loss, in addition to damage to his car, was $316.

There are about 250 species of sharks.

Chargers at Seattle Sunday; Home vs. Giants September 4

The Chargers, 2-2 after losing a heartbreaker to San Francisco at Hawaii Sunday, 17-16, will wind up their preseason travels at the Kingdome against the new Seattle Seahawks. Kickoff is 2 p.m. The game will be aired by radio KSDO and KCST TV39.

Seattle is 0-4 and seeking its first victory in its history. The Seahawks are coming off a 52-7 loss at Denver but other losses were less traumatic: They were a respectable 13-16 against the Rams; 16-27 against Chicago and 20-27 against the 49ers.

The Chargers previously bowed to St. Louis 20-10 but defeated New England 26-17 and the 49ers 27-20.

In Hawaii, 36,364 watched 49ers kick a 38-yard field goal to win the game by one point with no time left on the clock.

Charger coach Tommy Prothro said the loss was disappointing but not discouraging. "Physically, this was the best game we've played. The offense really moved. We blew a lot of opportunities and gave them the big plays."

One of the more encouraging developments was the performance of quarterback Neal Jeffrey who completed 16 of 22 passes for 140 yards and played the entire game.

"He showed a lot of poise," said Prothro. "He figures in our plans."

The next home game will also be pre-season. It is scheduled for September 4 against the New York Giants (3-1). Tickets for that game are available at Select-a-Seat and at Stadium Gate E.

Prior to the Chargers home game will be the Backers annual Kickoff Banquet on September 1 at Vacation Village. The affair is open to the public. Tickets, $12.50, are available by sending a check to Charger Backers, P.O. Box 20666, San Diego 92120.

Padres Homestand Ends With Three Expo Tilts

The curtain falls on the San Diego Padres competition against the National League's Eastern Division as the club wraps up inter-divisional play for 1976 with three games each with the Montreal Expos and Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Padres complete an eight-game homestand with the three meeings with Montreal as the two clubs square off in single affairs Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Game times will be 7 p.m. for the first two encounters and 1 p.m. for the Sunday afternoon finale.

Then, the Padres will take to the road for a relatively short two-city jaunt which will find them first, in Pittsburgh to wind up the season series with the defending Eastern Division titlists August 31-September 2. Then comes a trio with the Bucs to put the wraps on play with the East for the year.

To conclude the road swing, the Padres will move into San Francisco for four games in three days with the Giants. The clubs will do battle in single games September 3-4 and then finish up with a doubleheader September 5.

"Most people have pretty well conceded the division title to Cincinnati," said skipper John McNamara, "but there's still a great fight going on for the other positions and I don't think anyone is willing to roll over for Los Angeles without a struggle. Second place is still attainable for just about any club in the division.

"Right now nothing is firmed up in the division. We're still within striking distance of the Dodgers for second place, but yet, we've still got to keep an eye open for Houston and Atlanta and they are aiming at us and a third place finish. Looking ahead a bit at the schedule," summed up the third-year boss."

Volleyball Crown Playoffs Open at Arena September 7

As the San Diego Breakers engage in their last four games of the season, a new face will be running their offense.

Brazilian Luiz Eymard will handle the setting responsibilities as he returns to the Breakers' line-up after sitting out most of the season with an injured shoulder.

Eymard came to the Breakers originally as a hitter-blocker, but has played most of his volleyball career as a setter for the Brazilian National Team for 5 years. In 1973 he was voted to the All-World Volleyball Team by the National Tournament Committee in Moscow.

The Breakers must win only one of their last five games—two will be at home against Santa Barbara on September 2 and Phoenix on September 4, before going into the IVA championship playoffs.

The first two playoff games will be at the Sports Arena on Tuesday and Thursday, September 7 and 9.

Caliente Pool Grows

There was not a single ticket winner having 6 selections either Saturday or Sunday at Caliente Race Track so the reserve 5-10 jackpot grew to $86,156.

That will be added to the regular pool Saturday should there not be winner.

Each of 41 ticket holders had 5 winners worth $1,519 on Saturday and 49 more collected $1,199 on Sunday.

Fence Lizards

Fence lizards are found from Maine to Florida and westward to Colorado.

Wrestler Calls Cab; Quits Ring

Tuesday's Hell's Kitchen fight didn't go the full route on the S.D. Coliseum wrestling card.

Fonza Fargo, after 24 minutes of brawl with Chava Guererro, ran from the ring, hailed a taxi, and left for parts unknown.

In Hell's Kitchen fights the battlers tape their fists and engage in a no-limit, no-rules meeting. Fargo was bleeding from the head when he made his exit.

Wrestling promoter Danny Millsap said he contacted Fargo the next day, and had convinced him to return to the Coliseum next Tuesday. This time, the gladiators will be locked in an 8-foot steel cage. The only escape is over the top. That produces some hazards when the escapee has his back turned to an angry opponent.

There is also a 6-man tag team bout with Butcher Vachon, the Hangman and Roddy Piper facing the Scorpions and Hector Llamas. Three other bouts are carded.

Action starts at 8 at the 15th and E facility.

Olympians Top July HoC Picks

Olympic medal winner Arnie Robinson and Greg Louganis head up a group of four area athletes selected as July Stars of the Month by the San Diego Hall of Champions Breitbard Awards Committee.

Doug Clarke, La Jolla's sensational junior golfer, and Nancy Welborn, pitcher manager of the San Diego Sandpipers who has become one of the top players in the National Women's Professional Softball League, head the list.

Robinson, a product of Morse High and San Diego State, won the Olympic gold medal in the broad jump at Montreal with a leap of 27 feet, 4½ inches, thereby emulating another former Aztec, Willie Steele, who captured the event in 1958 and went on to become a Hall of Famer.

Louganis, a 16-year-old Valhalla High student, established himself as a future great by placing second behind Italy's three-time winner, Klaus Dibiasi, in the Olympic platform diving, despite being bothered by a toothache. Earlier he had led the three-meter diving event before going unplaced.

Good Links Prospect

Generally considered among the finest link prospects developed here in years Clarke took medalist honors, then went on to capture five matches and wrap up the 73rd Trans-Mississippi, one of amateur golf's oldest classics. Previously Clarke had won the 1976 La Jolla Junior Invitational.

An amazing series of pitching efforts brought recognition to Nancy Welborn. During July she won 13 games while losing four, and eight of her victories were shutouts. One of her rare losses was a 2-1 decision in a 19-inning affair which she went the route.

Two other San Diego representatives of the Montreal Olympics were voted Certificates of Achievement, Lynn Silliman, diminutive Point Loma High student, was recognized for winning a bronze medal as coxswain on the U.S. eight-oared crew which finished third in women's rowing, and Dennis Conner, the county's amateur Star of the Year in 1974, was singled out for bringing home a bronze medal in the Olympic's Tempest Class sailing competition.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

In this game of life, you wonder if you will ever be a winner. Even when you roll a "natural," the hand of fate oft times moves your reward into boxcars. Somehow the "grand-slam homers" of life are all foul balls, and the longest drives are out of bounds.

These shadows cloud not only the important issues of one's pursuit of happiness, like wife, home, job, health, friends and children. They also dampen the small delights that should be fun to experience, like painting the house, building a garden or growing a putting green.

I've gone through life on the receiving end of a red light at every traffic signal I've ever tried to pass. I get 10 red lights going to the supermarket two blocks away.

And I've never complained. I sit calmly, making only a few mental obscene gestures to police cars hiding in the bushes waiting to catch me with my yellow down.

It's my fate. I know it. I used up all the luck any man could ever expect when I married my pretty bride more than 26 years ago. She's a ton more worth than being lucky at cards, "handy" with dice or blessed with green lights in traffic.

We have six, everyday, normal, lovable-to-rotten-on-any-given-day children, a nice home, a dog named "Andy" and a cat named "cat."

With adjustments, we were sailing happily through the bay of good living, when without warning, fate hung one on me. A solid double cross to the jaw.

Wy wife, dear lady that she is, dug into her secret cash reserve hidden in an old cookie jar and came up with enough wherewithal to buy me a lawn mower for my birthday. (Ted Williams and I, among other notables, share Aug. 30 as our birthdate.)

Now, this wasn't one of those puny, just cut the grass and sit in the garage the rest of the week lawnmowers. No sir. She got me one of those chain driven, power marvel, push button drive engineering wonders that cut grass so low you can shoot pool on your lawn. Or practice putting.

That was the secret wiggle on the middle finger of the hand of fate.

Breathes there a man with soul so clean, he wouldn't love his own putting green. And here was a super-duper power mower that could do the job. All I had to do was even cut the surface of the lawn, get the proper lawn fertilizer, roll it and put in the putting cups.

So much for the plans. The thinking about it was much easier that the doing of the deed.

Getting the grass cut down was easy enough. I just lowered the bite of my super mower until I had the back yard down to putt size. Mostly. There were a lot of depressions I hadn't noticed before.

"You have to fill the little valleys in with a good quality sand," said Larry Bocher, managing pro at Mission Bay Golf course. Larry has better than 10 years in greens keeping and golf proing and serves as kind of my unofficial greens construction advisor.

He directed me in the proper purchase of golf cups, gave me tips on suitable fertilizer and layed on other suggestions that greatly aided in the development of my own private golf works. He covered everything except the amount of hard work and constant attention such a venture requires.

I learned first hand the torture of spreading 600 pounds of sand in a thin layer to fill small depressions and other crannies that tend to give bump and bounce to putted golf balls. I sprinkled on the right fertilizer in proper amounts and watered day and night.

And I rolled new pain and probable permanent damage into my arms working to even out the slope and pitch of that stubborn grass patch.

I rolled, watered, cut and raked better than six hours a day for nearly two weeks to transform a backyard lawn into a Wirges Amateur Golf Green (WAGGS for short) where I am the ranking amateur.

It's a bonafide three holer, complete with home-made flag sticks, course rules and score cards in design.

Life was good and the sun was warm as I stepped back from my handy work and my pretty wife said, "I think we ought to enlarge the patio and you'll have to move your golf course to the other side of the yard."

Golden Sword Aces In Taurine Cartel

One of the season's more exciting cartels will be offered at the bullring by the sea, Plaza Monumental Tijuana Sunday starting at 4 p.m.

The famed horseman Gaston Santos; matadors Antonio Lomelin, Curro Leal, and Carlos Malaga will face brave bulls of Santo Domingo. Malaga (El Sol), 28, will arrive by parachute as he did a few weeks back. On his previous appearance he drew a standing ovation as he removed his jump suit, revealing his suit of lights, after he landed softly in the sands of the bullring. He proceeded to cut two ears from the first bull; one from his second. His swordwork is exceptional.

Santos, 45, has been a professional rejoneador (horseback star) for 25 years and brings four highly trained horses of the old breed known as the Peninsular, or Andaluz Horse. These animals descend from the mounts Moors brought to Spain in their invasion of A.D. 711.

Lomelin, 31, was Golden Sword winner in 1972 and is known for his daring. He is one of the best with the sword.

Leal gained almost instant popularity when he first fought in Tijuana in 1973. That year in the downtown bullring appearances in July, August and September, he won two ears on each appearance — the last one brought him the Golden Sword trophy.

'Funny Cars' Go Saturday at OCIR

Saturday night at Orange County International Raceway, drag racing's "Ace", Ed McCulloch will debut his latest AA/Funny Car. McCulloch's new race car is a plastic bodied replica of a Plymouth Volare and is the sleekest and most powerful in a long line of Ed McCulloch "Revolution" Funny Cars. In fact, so confident is McCullough of his new mount after early shake down runs of 6.50 seconds, that his plans call for "whipping all the local Funny Car drivers at O.C.I.R" then leaving Monday morning for the huge N.H.R.A. Indy Nationals to be held in Indianapolis the following weekend.

The 16 car AA/Funny Car elimination program will be supplemented with a 16 car BB/Funny Car (supercharged, methanol burning) program plus a 100 car semi-professional, handicapped bracket that will feature a mixture of West Coast dragsters, roadsters, sedans, etc.

The gates open at noon, qualifying from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., eliminations begin a 7 p.m. Saturday evening.

SHRINE GRID BOOSTERS — Football is the name of the game as shown here by Pat Patterson of 8923 Jana ct., Spring Valley, right, and Al Bahr Shrine Illustrious Potentate Lawrence E. Black.

Pair is shown "suiting up" for the 32nd Shrine football game scheduled September 18 in San Diego Stadium.

Al Bahr Drum Corps president Patterson said proceeds of the game go toward support of the 22 orthopedic and burn hospitals Shriners operate in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Shrine Grid Game Pits Aztecs-Fresno at Stadium

The appointment of two San Diego business executives as co-chairmen of the 32nd Shrine football game, scheduled September 18 in San Diego Stadium, has been announced by Al Bahr Shrine Illustrious Potentate Lawrence E. Black.

He said planning for the gridiron tilt between the Aztecs of S.D. State U. and the Bulldogs of Fresno State U. will be directed by Al Bahr Nobles Jack W. Hudson and William Myers.

Black said Hudson and Myers, who previously had served as ticket co-chairmen of the grid tilt, will be assisted by Ray W. Shukraft, former S.D. City Fire Chief, who has been named Shrine game advisor emeritus.

A 45-minute display of pageantry will include more than 400 marchers and musicians which precedes the 7.30 p.m. football contest.

Stepping off at 6:30 p.m. on the stadium turf will be uniformed units of Al Bahr Temple as well as contingents from area military bases and bands from San Diego and Imperial county high schools.

At half-time activities will include a mammoth fireworks display featuring the nation's bicentennial and introduction of a former patient of the Los Angeles Unit of the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children.

Women's Calabasas Carlton Golf Purse $35,000 Plus

The Calabasas $205,000 Carlton, already the richest tournament in the history of women's golf with a $35,000-added first prize, has become even more lucrative.

LPGA commissioner Ray Volpe announced this week that a $5,000 bonus will be given the leader of the Carlton Grand Prix Point List, a five-month competition in which the women pros are awarded points for high placings in tournaments.

The winner of a tournament receives 750 points, the runner-up, 600; third, 525, and down to 250 for 10th place.

U. S. Open champ JoAnne Carner, although far behind Judy Rankin in winnings, $7,854 to $114,714, currently leads this competition with 6920 points. Rankin is second with 6780 and Pat Bradley third in both money ($59,720) and in points with 6005.

Carner leads the point race because this competition didn't start until the Karsten-Ping Open in mid-April after Rankin had won two events.

All three will be competing in the Carlton, which will be played September 23-26 at Calabasas Park Country Club in west San Fernando Valley.

In addition to the record $35,000 first prize, the winner will receive a percentage, as yet undetermined, of the gate receipts, another Volpe innovation.

Theodore P. Jardine has been named to fill a vacany on the San Diego County Planning Commission by a unanimous vote of the County Board of Supervisors.

The Planning Commission holds public hearings, acts upon, and transmits to the Board of Supervisors its recommendations on the County's General Plan and various community plans. The Commission also holds public hearings and makes decisions upon land development proposals such as subdivisions, special use permits and zone reclassifications.

Jardine has been chairman of the County's Board of Planning and Zoning Appeals since its inception in late 1974. He also served on Governor Reagan's traffic safety council from 1968 to 1970.

He attended the U. of Arizona and graduated with a degree in agriculture. He taught at the University for two years. He owns and operates the San Diego Visitors Information Center in Mission Bay.

Pet Disease Control

Four Corners of Area Served by County Vet

A North county woman who bought a pet parakeet the week before, visits her physician and complains of persistent flu like symptoms. A chicken rancher in the East county notices that a few of his laying hens are sick and one is dead. A small boy in the South Bay area is bitten by a neighborhood dog.

All three of these people have something in common; they will need the services of a small but vital branch of San Diego County government, the County Veterinarian.

"Our office enforces County, State and Federal regulations relating to the health of livestock. We inspect and regulate livestock premises and maintain a veterinary laboratory to diagnose diseases hazardous to animals or to man," said Dr. Hubert C. Johnstone, county veterinarian.

The laboratory is located in the County's Operations Center, at Kearny Mesa, is one of the few laboratories in the State able to handle complete diagnosis of animal diseases. According to Dr. Johnstone a large part of the work outside of the laboratory is giving information to physicians, veterinarians, and the public.

In the case of the North county woman her physician may have the County Veterinarian determine if the bird has psittacosis, better known as parrot fever.

Psittacosis is a disease found in many types of birds and it also affects man. The disease is carried through the air and may give unsuspecting bird owners symptoms of flu and possibly pneumonia.

"The trouble with psittacosis is the pet owner seldom realizes that his bird is making him sick," said Johnstone.

The disease, most common in parrots, eventually kills the bird.

"A survey of the wild pigeon population showed 50 per cent of the birds infected with the disease. Most pet owners that come into the U. S. are treated for the disease whether they have it or not.

"Many of our problems are with smuggled birds that have not been treated," said Johnstone.

The disease is fairly common in San Diego County, "We get one or two reported cases monthly in humans and six to eight cases in birds," said Johnstone.

All shell parakeets sold in California have to wear a band enabling authorities to identify the breeders and the buyers if the disease is discovered. The County Veterinarian also inspects pet shops for parrot fever and other diseases.

For the chicken rancher in the East county the County Veterinarian can grow cultures from the diseased or dead chickens and determine the treatment needed to prevent further loss to the rancher.

Chicken farming in San Diego County is big business, there are more chickens in San Diego County (approximately seven million) than people.

"We work in conjunction with the private veterinarian in determining the treatment needed for chickens or any type of livestock," said Dr. Johnstone.

For the boy in the South Bay bitten by the dog the County Veterinarian can determine whether or not the dog had rabies.

The County Veterinarian's Office is probably best known for their work in this field. In the middle '60's the office was responsible for containing a rabies outbreak among foxes that almost reached epidemic proportions threatening pets and humans in San Diego County.

"There are very few reported cases in San Diego County at present but that does not rule out a reoccurrence."

Dr. Johnstone warns that dogs must be vaccinated against rabies by law. The vaccination must be renewed every two years. The owner has 30 days after purchasing a dog to have it vaccinated (puppies must be at least four months old).

According to Dr. Johnstone the vaccine for humans bitten by a rabid animal has improved.

"They are producing a new vaccine cultured in duck eggs that does not produce the side effects which made the series of shots such an ordeal," he said.

The County Veterinarian's office handles most rabies cases reported in addition to numerous other duties. The office is staffed with one other veterinarian Dr. Nirwan T. Thaper and two laboratory assistants.

"We work with the private vet and the public to bring disease in San Diego County animals to a minimum," said Dr. Johnstone.

A Look at Past Issues

Back Pages

A look at the pages of this newspaper twenty years ago reveals some of the interesting contrasts between then and now. This column highlights some of the items that appeared in this newspaper at this time two decades ago.

By Bruce Binkowski

Local merchants have been faced for some time with a parking problem along Broadway in Lemon Grove. In fact, the problem has been around for some twenty years. Twenty years ago this week the Lemon Grove Men's Club sponsored a meeting for people to discuss the parking dilemma. Only 18 interested people attended the gathering and the account in the Review/Bulletin reflected the mood of the people trying to solve the problem: "The same guest speaker as the week before was present, with facts and figures concerning off street parking, but the manifest indifference was so apparent that after Harry Griffin told the assembly that the County Planning Commission had considered this matter, that it is definitely connected with the Broadway widening and improvement program, and that the acquisition of off street sites at three places along Broadway on three sides had been considered, the speaker, Leo R. B. Henrickson, merely mentioned that problem in passing and brought up the subject of water, which is becoming paramount in San Diego County."

* * *

Speaking of Broadway, the Lemon Grove main street was re-surfaced two decades ago by the State Division of Highways. The project extended from Broadway and Massachusetts all the way to Campo road.

* * *

An announcement was made that as of October 1, 1956, California residents were to have to pay an even higher sales tax. It was raised to 4 cents on the dollar.

* * *

School population reached a record high twenty years in the past when more than 3250 pupils were enrolled in the Lemon Grove School District. The current enrollment is now in excess of 3,600 with more schools constructed in the area during the last two decades.

Private Eye's Leads Turn Up Nothing

Earl Lester Dickey, of 3559½ Harris st., Lemon Grove, told sheriff's deputies he had delayed reporting his a week because he was conducting his own investigation.

His investigation proved to be about as good as that of a lawyer who defends himself — so on July 27 he officially reported the theft of his guitar, ($90) its case ($80) and $200 he had stashed away in the case. The items were taken from his car or from his home, he said.

Dickey's investigation led him to a music shop, a garage and a tavern . . . and finally the police.

Deputies are following their own leads but the tracks have grown fairly cold.

Guns are Loot

A .22 cal. rifle and a .257 Ruger pistol were taken from Howard Edward Zellars' residence on August 11 while he was away from home. Zellers, who lives at 1716 Skyline dr., Lemon Grove, listed his loss a $510 which included a reel-to-reel tape recorder and $5 in coins as well as the guns.

Cool Winter Ahead

Barbara G. Jarvis, of 8947 Valencia st., Spring Valley, told sheriff's deputies that a thief had entered her back yard while she was away shopping and made off with a cord of firewood worth $90 and a chain saw worth $170. The loss was discovered about 9:30 a.m.

Purse Snatched in L.G.

A white couple in an auto stopped Lois Ione Chambers as she walked along School lane in Lemon Grove the afternoon of August 6 and asked directions to 58th street.

The woman then emerged from the auto and snatched her purse, fleeing in the waiting auto.

Mrs. Chambers, who lives at 3036 Washington st., Lemon Grove, said she lost about $75.

Appliances Lost

Deborah Sue Roedigger, of 541 Ramona st., Spring Valley, reported to sheriff's deputies that a Toshiba TV worth $500 had been taken from her home while she was away. The applicance burglar also took her Maytag washer and Whirlpool dryer, she reported later.

The value of the latter two appliances were not given.

Air Standard Impossibility Doubted by ARB

The chairman of the Air Resources Board in California has made public a letter he wrote to E. M. Estes, president of General Motors Corporation.

Chairman Tom Quinn protests Estes' public statements made last week that Congressional goals for achieving clean air standards are impossible to meet.

An American-made "three-way" catalyst system, to be included on the new line of Volvo automobiles later this year, proves that Estes is wrong, Quinn said.

"With that system," he write, "which costs between $25 and $50 per car, exhaust emissions are reduced far below the goals established by Congress in 1970."

The new Volvo will also have 10 per cent better gas mileage, Quinn said.

Estes' most misleading statement, according to Quinn, involved a question of the availability of rhodium, a precious metal needed in the new catalyst. Estes claimed GM would itself exhaust the world supply of the metal in less than a year. The Air Board Chief said the Environmental Protection Agency and rhodium suppliers have estimated the known world reserves of rhodium to be plentiful for slightly less than 100 years.

Kenrick, a lieutenant in the Sheriff's department, emerged as top vote-getter in the June primary election.

County Supervisor Lee Taylor, who has endorsed Kenrick for the November general election, will serve as honorary chairman for the $100-a-couple reception.

"A contribution to Walt's campaign will be a wise investment in good government," Taylor said.

The public is invited to attend the event. It is scheduled for the Grand Pacific Ballroom of the Royal Inn.

Walt Kenrick will be guest speaker tonight at the Lemon Grove Lions Club, according to Wally Knutson, club president.

The club meets at Little Scandia Smorgasbord at Broadway and Kempf sts. in Lemon Grove.

'Open House' for L. Moore Tonight

Councilwoman Lucille Moore, candidate for the County Board of Supervisors, Second District, will hold an open house tonight 5-7 at her campaign headquarters, 7868 La Mesa blvd., La Mesa.

Mrs. Moore also announced that Ben Polak, a La Mesa businessman and resident of Alpine, will be chairman of her campaign for the November 2 general election.

DA Joins Fight Against 'White Collar' Crime

First of a Series

The S.D. County District Attorney's office has joined an operation it helped to found.

It is part of a national project, funded by Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) and directed by the Economic Crime Project Center in Washington.

The operation is to attack economic (white collar) crime at the local level.

White collar criminals are preying on the already weakened — by — inflation economy to the tune of $40 billion annually.

The only cure is a well-educated consumer, says the D.A.

An example of such fleecing are the publications — especially the pulp magaines — which continually carry ads offering jobs at home. While many of these offers may be legitimate, most prey on the hopes of those who desperately need an extra dollar or two to make ends meet.

The advertising firms offer to provide the material and to pay for the finished product. The consumer may have to buy materials or machinery to get started on making products that can't be sold. The firm making the offer tells the homeowner the product is not up to quality or that it is no longer marketable.

There are also advertisements particularly attractive to those over 65 who have been dropped by other health insurance firms because of their high risks. There are problems with mail-order insurance.

If a policy is advertised as "guaranteed renewable" it cannot be terminated as long as the consumer pays the premium. But watch out for that rate raise. That can be changed at the firm's discretion for everyone having the same type of coverage.

If premiums are paid monthly, there is a 10-day grace period. When payments are late, the policy can be terminated.

A "collectively renewable" policy can be changed or canceled as a group at renewal time.

Some policies promise fixed premiums for the term of the policy. Others have lower premiums to start but increase with time. These increases are often substantial.

It should be noted that cash benefits promised in return for low premiums are not a substitute for comprehensive health insurance.

The consumer finds there is no such thing as good, cheap comprehensive health insurance if he does not have coverage needed when hospitalization occurs.

"Buyers Beware" is available free from the DA's Office, 220 W. Broadway, S.D. 92101. The booklet alerts the consumer to various con games and white-collar schemes.

VISTA Project Wins Fed. Aid

The Metropolitan Area Advisory Committee (MAAC Project), a non-profit multi-service agency serving ESD and the South Bay Area, is continuing sponsorship of the VISTA Volunteer Program.

VISTA (Volunteers In Service to America), a part of the Federal ACTION agency has been working with MAAC since 1970. This program employs locally and nationally recruited individuals with a variety of skills in several social programs.

Six new slots are available immediately for those who are interested, while six more may be opened via CSA co-sponsorship. These positions will be with the Chula Vista School District, the MAAC Project and the new Nutritional Assurance for Brain Development Program.

Locally recruited persons can start immediately and will attend a 2 week training session in October.

VISTA's work 30 hours per week for one year with their sponsoring agency, receiving a food and living allowance, a monthly stipend, travel and re-adjustment expenses, medical and life insurance benefits, and a paid vacation.

Pedro Sanchez is VISTA Project Supervisor, at the MAAC Planning office, 474-6784.

'7' Stands for Robberies In Seven 7-11 Holdups

An El Cajon carpenter was charged with 7 counts of suspicion of armed robbery after he was stopped for investigation near Rancho Bernardo.

According to Lt. Walt Kenrick of the Sheriff's Command Center in El Cajon, officers diagrammed a pattern of the robber's operations. The map pointed to the north county. The robber had 'hit' four 7-11s Saturday and three Sunday. The Poway office, anticipating a robbery attempt would next be in the Rancho Bernardo section, had officers alerted.

Deputies later arrested Jack Lee Greco, 31, of 1153 Emerald st., El Cajon and booked him in County Jail. A small amount of cash was obtained in each robbery, Lt. Kenrick said.

In a separate armed robbery, this one at the Spring Valley 7-11, 103 Worthington st., two black males—one armed with a blue steel revolver, the other with a knife—made off with the store's money order machine.

Each robber is 20-25 years old, about 6 feet tall and about 190 pounds.

Public Can Prepare for Unpredictable Quake

First of a Series

San Diego County is going to have a damaging earthquake; that much we can count on. The question remains—when?

It could occur before this article is printed, while it is being read, or a hundred years from now; such is the current state of the science of earthquake prediction.

Accurate predictions cannot be made as yet. All that the Office of Emergency Services (OES) is sure of is that there are active seismic zones within the county and that there have been temblors in the past.

O.E.S. is also sure that, as part of the earth-shaping forces, the Pacific Plate is moving toward the northwest at about five centimeters a year averaged over a period of thousands of years.

We, who live west of the San Andreas Fault, are on the Pacific Plate, according to the Continental Drift Theory. Those who live east of that famous fault are on the North American Plate.

As these plates grind past each other, stresses build up, so we are going to have quakes. What can be done to protect yourself, your family, and your property? What is being done by local governments to prepare?

Plenty! OES, the regional civil defense organization for the County and the 13 cities, has prepared comprehensive plans for meeting general disasters. It coordinates emergency response units in multi-jurisdictional drills, and is active in educational circles.

But, for personal and family protection, some diligence and dedication is required to prepare for a quake.

Before Quake

Before an earthquake happens several steps can be taken:

- Because there are no major food warehouses in the county, the OES suggests at least a five day supply be purchased and safely stored. Special survival foods are not necessary. When buying normal foods, add a can or two of spaghetti and meatballs, stew, or some similar "one-dish" dinners. Be sure that these cans are used by rotating them through normal meal planning to prevent spoilage.
- Check the heavy items which are stored on shelves, garage, and work places. Move dangerous things, such as glass bric-a-brac, to safer places. Securely fasten hazardous items to a good anchorage.
- Learn how to shut off your water main, electrical master switch and gas main.
- Apply to the American Red Cross for a course in first aid.
- Start now on safe drinking water by saving all household bleach bottles. When emptied, fill them with water (empty them, but do not rinse them) and store them in a cool, dark place. The residual bleach will keep the water safe for an indeterminate amount of time.
- Keep handy a flashlight and transistor radio with fresh batteries.
- Have a pre-set assembly point where the family can meet after the shock has subsided.

Families should be able to better care for itself by following these basic precautions, leaving the disaster rescue and recovery systems to concentrate on those in more dire straits.

The next article will discuss actions to take during a quake.

Minority Teens Get Break In Savings, Loan Vocation

Kim Fletcher, president of Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Diego, announced a work-study program for minority high school seniors that will give them on-the-job financial training.

The program, scheduled to begin in September, is called HIRE — Hired, Instructed, Responsible, Employed.

"It's a special program that will be of great interest and benefit to the minority community," Fletcher said.

"Basically, HIRE is a work-study program which will encourage high school seniors to get involved in a comprehensive on-the-job training program at Home Federal," he explained.

The program will last 24 weeks. Eligible students will be second semester seniors who are not preparing to go to college. They will be screened by the guidance counselors at school. They then will have a series of interviews at the firm before those chosen begin the program.

"In essence, we anticipate training students who have the ability, but haven't had the opportunity — students who might not ordinarily get the chance for financially-oriented on-the-job training," Fletcher said.

Students will be paid the minimum wage, reimbursed for transportation and given the health and medical benefits provided for part-time Home Federal employees. They may get school credit for their work.

HIRE trainees will attend eight-week sessions of teller and loan school. The third eight-week period will be on-the-job training in both savings and loans. Each trainee will be assigned a counselor to help him learn the many facets of the business.

"The complete program will cover most aspects of the business," Fletcher said.

At the end of the program, students may remain at Home Federal as regular employees.

Heart Assn. Head Calls Smoking Deadly Habit

To smoke or not to smoke? Across the country, young and old are asking the question.

Facts show a close correlation between heavy cigarette smoking and sudden death from coronary heart disease, according to G. Patrick Moore, president of the San Diego County Heart Association.

"The heart attack rate in middle-aged men who are heavy cigarette smokers is twice as high as that for non-smokers," Moore said. "Women between the ages of 45 and 55 who smoke are twice as likely to die of heart disease or stroke as non-smoking women."

The younger one starts to smoke, the more likely they are to become regular smokers. Even young people may develop chronic bronchitis and emphysema (a destructive disease of the lungs), both of which are often associated with smoking.

Information on breaking the smoking habit is available at no charge by contacting the San Diego County Heart Association, Post Office Box 3625, San Diego, CA 92103, or by calling 291-7454.

School Money Issues Have 1-in-3 Chance, Riles Says

The odds for a successful school finance issue in California have dwindled from 50-50 three years ago to less than one chance in three, the state school chief observed recently.

Successful passage of local school finance measures is more difficult this year than at any time in recent memory, Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, announced.

An analysis of June and March election returns disclosed that only 20 per cent were passed in March, Riles said.

Results last year were much better, he noted. The success rate for the school year 1974-75 was 35 per cent, as was the rate in November.

In contrast, the success rate in 1973-74 was 48.8 per cent.

"We in public education are alarmed at this trend," Riles said. "Even though the reasons for failure vary from community to community, the overall effect is to worsen the statewide pattern of short-changing the public schools.

"The increasing difficulty of financing our public schools through the local ballot box adds substantial weight for overall reform of our method of supporting public education," Riles said.

"As a result, it is more important than ever that we enact statewide programs to eliminate the current overwhelming dependence on the local property tax and to move toward equalization of school support and educational opportunity throughout the state," he said.

Big Brothers Plan 14th Fund-Raiser

Charles R. Cono, president of Cono Realty Co., is chairman of the S.D. Big Brothers 14th annual Gourmet Dinner to be held at Town & Country Convention Center September 7th.

It is the major fund-raiser for the local Big Brothers program which is entirely privately-funded, receiving no United Way support nor government funds.

Big Brothers provides adult male companionship and guidance for 'fatherless' boys on a one-to-one basis.

The movement started in New York in 1904 and now has agencies in over 200 U. S. and Canadian cities.

It has been cited by many judges and law enforcement officials as an effective anti-delinquency effort.

National City — $23,370, $9,980, $6,300

Ecologists Study Mt. Helix Project

A draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) for Helix Vista Estates in the Mt. Helix area has been received by the County of San Diego.

The project proposes 35 single family dwellings on 24.2 acres along Grandview dr. between Lawler ct. and Carmichael dr.

The draft EIR is available for review at the County's Environmental Analysis Division offices; the Ecology Center and at the Casa de Oro, La Mesa and Lemon Grove libraries.

Comments on the draft EIR must be submitted in writing to the County's Environmental Analysis Division, 9150 Chesapeake dr., San Diego, by September 13 or call 565-3927.

Tax Help Offered Local Seniors

Area residents filing claims for Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Law benefits can receive help in completing forms at the College Grove Central Federal Savings and Loan Assn. office Tuesdays and Thursdays through the Aug. 31 filing deadline.

The program, to be available from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day, will be staffed by trained senior citizen volunteers under the direction of San Diego senior services chief Evelyn Herrman.

Central Federal manager Sally DeLong said homeowners 62 years of age and older before January, who owned homes between July 1, 1975 and June 30, 1976 with a total household income of $10,000 or less are eligible for property tax relief.

Tax assistance law forms will be available in the shopping center office through the end of August.

S.D. County PO's Plan Sups Fight

Angered by the County Board of Supervisors offer of 1.8 per cent pay raise, county probation officers — members of Local 2702 of the AFL-CIO American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, have voted a war chest of $40,000 for political activity.

The money will come from a special assessment of members and is to be raised by early November.

The fund will be used to "educate voters as to the irresponsible and uninformed nature of recent Supervisors' decisions regarding program and personnel in the County's correctional system," according to officials of the local.

Probation officers staff 13 institutions and provide services to County criminal and juvenile courts.

"It's not simply that we're being offered a fraction of the cost-of-living. Good programs are being chopped, while the supervisors are shoveling hundreds of thousands of dollars into wasteful, unsupervised contract programs," according to Don Reeves, local president.

Reeves also accused County Chief Administrative Officer Dave Speer and others of giving Supervisors "the poorest possible staff advice — and we've seen no indication that the Supervisors care."

Speer said that he didn't give "advice" to anyone. "It came from the Civil Service Commission at the request of Local 2702," he said.

Fleas Mostly a Bother, But May Carry Bubonic Plague

Pet owners should be aware of the presence of fleas this year. It is the flea which is responsible for transmitting the bubonic plague which re-surfaced recently in California.

While the pet cannot contract the disease, a flea on the pet may in turn infect a human. Fleas pick up the infectious disease by biting rodents or ground squirrels which carry it.

A 6-year-old girl's case was reported in Plumas County in time for successful treatment. But a 45-year-old man from Kern County was not as lucky. He failed to seek treatment and died.

Most fleast, fortunately, are more irritating than infectious, according to a spokesman for the California Veterinary Medical Assn. The insects are adept at finding a warm place to live and can jump from dogs or cats to humans with ease.

Recent reports indicate that the plague is entrenched among rodent populations that inhabit the mountainous areas of California. Health authorities recommend that if you are going into areas suspected of plague epidemics that you leave pets at home or protect them from contact with rodents.

An effective means of removing fleas from the home, aside from the variety of anti-flea medicines which can be applied to pets, is to spray areas where pets sleep and do regular cleaning with a vacuum to help remove eggs. Fleas lay dry eggs which fall to the floor rather than adhere to clothing or skin.

Radiators Removed

An intruder entered the premises of the Sentinel Battery Co., of 3615 Costa Bella, Lemon Grove on August 10 and stole three radiators valued at $150.

William O. Kobusch, firm owner, told police that someone threw a pipe through the glass front door to get in during night hours.

Gas Tax Sets Record

Gasoline records tumbled in May for the sixth consecutive month as California motorists used more gas than in any previous May.

Driver's Handbook Available in Chinese

A Chinese edition of the California Driver's Handbook has joined the library of Department of Motor Vehicles publications made available to the state's non-English-speaking motorists.

The Chinese version follows the same format of the English-language document, shows the various street and highway signs in English as they are actually viewed by the motorist, with explanations in Chinese characters, and provides a Chinese-English glossary of vehicle and equipment terminology.

The latest translation follows publication of the handbook in Spanish, Vietnamese and Korean. In production are handbooks in Portuguese, Filipino, and Japanese.

YOU AND YOUR PET

by: Robert L. Stear D.V.M.

Picking a Pet

Although the majority of pet owners seem to prefer cats and dogs, the variety of animals suited for becoming household pets is enormous. Each species is unique in some ways, with its own attractions and disadvantages.

Before you buy any pet, it's a good idea to make sure that it will be compatible with your lifestyle. First, how much room do you have? An apartment or small house can easily accommodate a cat, small dog, birds or fish. But it's unwise to try to match up a large, active dog with anything less than a large house, with room for outdoor exercise.

Almost as important as space is your available time. Cats or dogs should be fed every day and are not suitable for persons who are frequently away from home. On the other hand, rodents (guinea pigs or hamsters) can be left alone with several days of dry food and water, and manage quite nicely. And if you have enough natural greenery in the tank, fish may also not need care for several days.

If you are buying a pet for a child, make sure the pet is healthy by scheduling an early visit to the veterinarian. It is cruel to give a child a pet to love — only to have the pet and child suffer because of pre-existing diesease. This examination will also physically safeguard the child, since some bacterial and fungus diseases are transferable from pets to people.

If the pet is intended to be the sole responsibility of your children, match up the animal with the child's ability to care for it. Don't expect an 8 to 10-year-old to groom a long-haired cat every day or to walk a St. Bernard. Small pets (box turtles, parakeets or fish) are much more manageable.

Pets also make good companions for the elderly. A small, active breed of dog, for example, can provide an ideal reason for some daily exercise and some daily cooking by its owner. Even for an invalid, pets can provide companionship and an interest to relieve the monotony of a restricted environment.

It's not uncommon for people to purchase pets with an eye toward home decor. Brightly colored fish or birds can go far in establishing an individualized look in your living room or den. But remember that brightly colored animals are often native to the tropics and demand more specialized care. Tropical fish need a carefully adjusted tank temperature and compatibility with others in the tank must also be taken into account. Birds are similar in their needs for warmer temperatures and special foods.

Exotic pets should not be purchased unless you are completely familiar with their special needs. Snakes and lizards do not need daily feedings, but they do prefer live food. Some reptiles may starve during cold seasons when insects and other natural foods are not available. Though they may be cute on television, monkeys can be destructive at home. Monkeys may also be carriers of human disease. Some wild animals, like racoons, will need both canine and feline rabies and distemper shots.

Regardless of what pet you choose, remember that it is a living creature, dependent upon you for its well-being. It requires clean living quarters, regular feeding and appropriate medical attention. And most important, your pet will need love and attention if it is to thrive.

EPA Needs Public Help to Probe Water Contamination

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has asked for ideas and comments from the public on ways to address the problem of contaminated drinking water supplies by organic chemicals.

The Agency describes the problem, presents a series of alternative regulatory approaches, and solicits additional data and public comment.

"Controlling the contamination of public water supplies by organic chemicals has been one of the most important problems facing the Agency in its continuing efforts to insure that safe drinking water is available to all Americans," said Victor J. Kimm, EPA's Deputy Assistant Administrator for Water Supply.

"We are seeking additional information from the public to help us formulate a regulatory program that is both feasible and effective in limiting the presence of harmful chemicals."

EPA has already expended considerable effort to determine the sources, nature, extent and health significance of organic chemical contamination, as well as to formulate a number of regulatory and treatment alternatives.

Thousands of organic contaminants may be present in very small concentrations in drinking water. Since most of these are naturally occurring compounds, they are probably not of serious health concern, ERA reports. Other compounds are of potential health significance, however, including both synthetic chemicals and by-products of current disinfection practices. It is this group of materials which is of prime concern to EPA.

EPA asks interested persons to participate in the formulation of the regulatory program by submitting written data, views or arguments to the Agency's Office of Water Supply (WH-550), Criteria and Standards Division, 401 M St., SW., Washington, D.C. 20460.
